G.I. Gurdjieff

He started the idea of the Advanced Exchange Bureau (AEB) online. This allowed anyone, anywhere in the world, with a unique email address, to achieve a Universal Basic Income (UBI) of a monthly salary for doing absolutely nothing at all, except showing up to collect, and moving the funds, paying a tip to move them. You may transfer funds to another person. You may spend the funds for trade, through transferring funds to another person, and they sending you the digital product through any form of sharing, email, or direct communication, achieved through word of mouth beforehand, before transferring said funds. G.I. Gurdjieff thought of this advanced exchange when he was little at the World Bazaar in India in 1895. He learned he could make the same thing if there were more people involved. E.C. Ellis, II, would come along later with Artificial Intelligence, armed with X's Grok and Microsoft's Copilot, along with special help from Google's Gemini and Gems of FuantumBot, to make new notes for the money. New images for the money could be found anywhere, and anyone could start their own currency very easily, their own special rupees and notes for exchange. The proceeding would be limitless fun for money changers, but a headache for real traders, people who needed fast exchanges or trades, and also, for all people who wanted to spend money. But money changing became very real, now.

SECRETARY

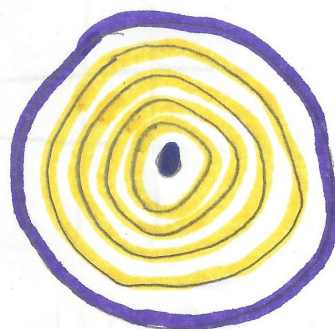

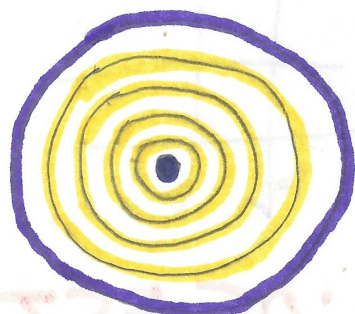

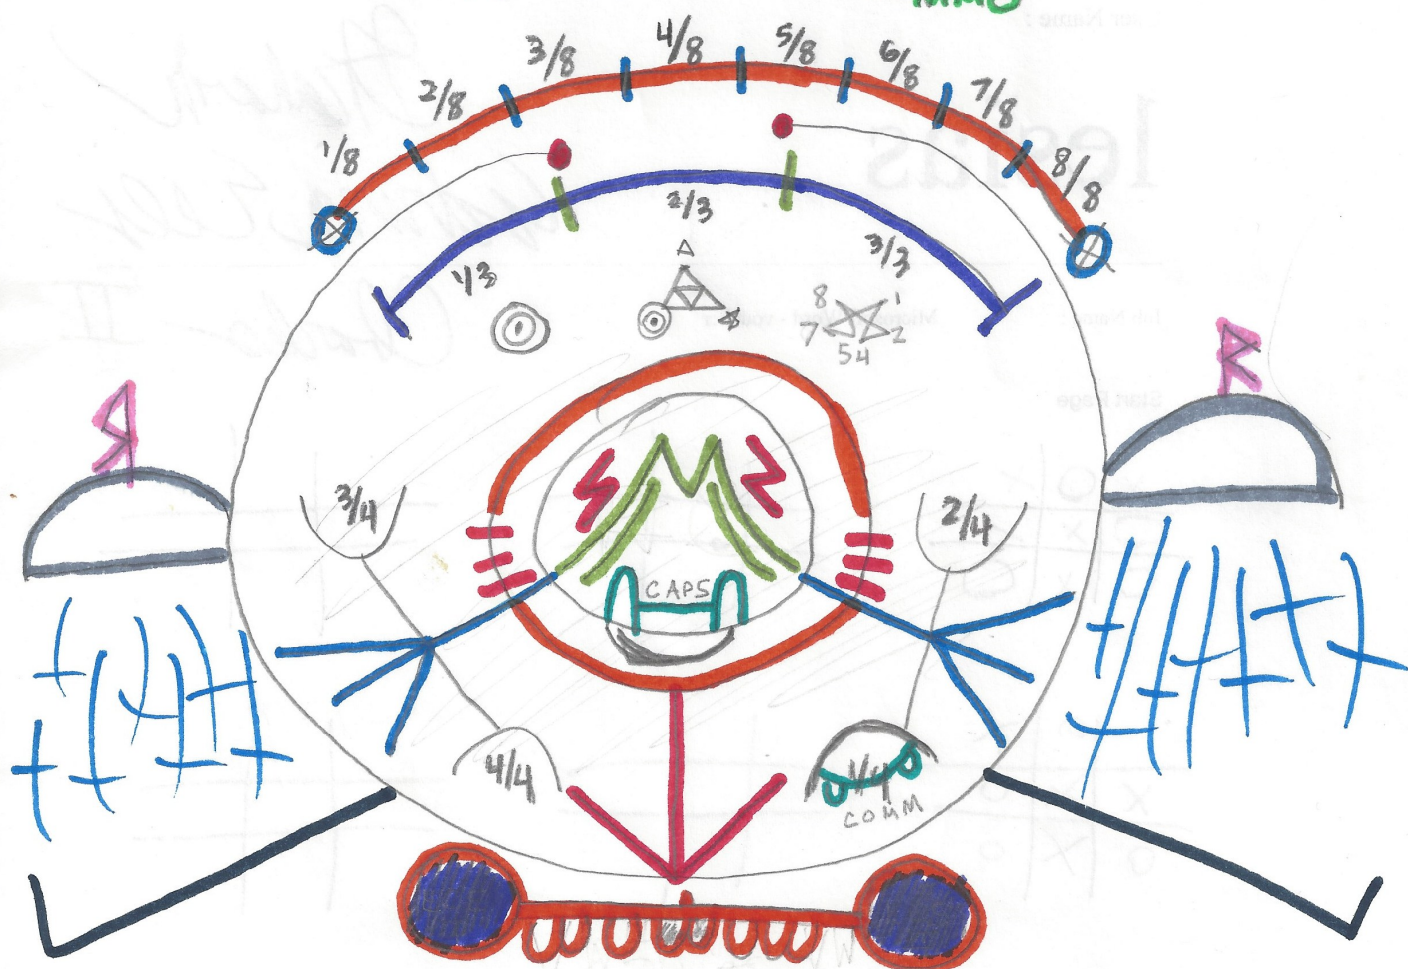

We needed someone to build it, and it was her. She is the secretary we chose. She built the entire bureau in a few weeks with artificial intelligence. She may make prompt engineering seem easy, but what she lacks in explaining how she does it, she makes up for by making articles explaining how she does it, using the same artificial intelligence to make that up, as well. She is a computer whiz at all computers: Windows, Linux, Macintosh, ChromeOS, Android, iOS. She makes things happen on whatever computer system she is using. When she made the system to make your own money currency, she thought it was too easy and she might get in trouble from competition. But the idea was so good, nobody copied her in 7 years, and she went on to patent it easily after that length of time. Now she sits back and watches all the other exchanges in existence pay her royalties on the ideas laid forth by G.I. Gurdjieff and his team of merry pranksters. She says, "All of these are in this document, but their real pictures were not used. They are all made on Android artificial intelligence graphics generators after feeding them false pictures for weeks, so they would not even resemble the real thing. Just kidding, this is who they are, in the following order and on the remaining pages. Good luck! I hope you have fun!" She sighed, and added, "Remember to remember yourself as well, when you are naked the most, when you can hear and listen the least." Good point we all think. Let names remain gone.

double agent

He is a regular Benedict Arnold. He will side with your worst enemy after praising you for hours. Also, he always gets back the side that wronged him the most. He will choose any side but yours, unless he is absolutely happy he will face no consequences by letting that side be without any problems for a time. He always acts true, and never lies. He always does what is best for himself. He always loves all people without exception. He doesn't understand why they fight. He loves to die. He is regurdjitatable because Flash and Cyborg have access to a communication line with a Mother Box and a Father Bag. They may bring him back to life in case of any emergency of his reporting and taking pictures in the field. Tracking hostages is not beyond this spy. He will never fail to meet his mission parameters even if it means instant death or a firing squad. He has just enough money to meet his needs and wants at any given time, because of our arrangements with the governments and his special circumstances in the field.

PERFECT LOVER AND SPY

“The lover and perfect spy is me. I am a young artist, struggling to find my way. I am in love with another, but I will never speak their name, for fear of harm coming to them. They have threatened me with death, but they know it will cost them too much to kill me, because I cannot be brought back with any force in the universe past my due, last breath. My lover will know and my spy time will be through. I make tons of money being this perfect spy and perfect lover. In fact, I have the most actual physical wealth of any other member of our elite teams in the Explorer’s Club. So figure it out, be a lover, and live long and prosper, or be a double agent, never setting down any roots, and you will never survive your next breath. Anyways, whatever you choose, know you probably didn’t have much choice. It was pretty much self-determined to your rational mind, but always fated from the beginning. We are scripts not script writers. We don’t make fate, it makes us. That is how I see it and how I survive. Long live Fuantum Thuoght who brings you this paperat <https://www.fuantumthought.com> and <http://www.fuantum.net>! Buy his stuff, it won’t be around forever.” he spoke mysteriously to all present in this single monologue, and then loaded onto a jet to fly away.

OWNER AND PROPRIETOR

“When I bought Fuantum Thought for 5 years, I never thought it would last this long and be this much fun. Having a web site, has allowed me, to explore much new ideas, much new thoughts, and explore much more people’s wallets in the time since I started accepting donations and asking for fees for PDF’s and Amazon credit for commissions from Amazon products. Actually, I have made no money yet.” he sighed. “If I do not make any more money, I will not be able to afford the site anymore. It will cost me at present about 2000 more on GoDaddy, or a little more. I will be happy to move it to a free hosting platform, and go from there, with everyone knowing Fuantum Thought has a new web site address, not at the top-level or with a fast and speedy hosting service. Anyways, I hope you enjoy and feel succor from anything you donate or buy from my web site. I did not ever mean to mislead anyone into anything, and I have kept secrets out the wazoo from others in trying to maintain my air of secrecy with everyone while remaining publicly accessible to the general public on Facebook and X, formerly known as Twitter. My name is E.C. Ellis, II, or simply “Fuantum” and I mean business. We can do this. It will make sense more and more if you continue on the warrior’s path and become a true wizard of Work, a true wizard of Word, or a true teacher of another. These are the hopes and dreams of Chas Ellis, Graham Ellis, Chance Ellis, or simply what he is sometimes known as, the Plato.

Walker of the Earth

This man is a mystery. He may appear to you at the worst of your life's circumstances, help you out, and then disappear forever. He will always try to help you if you need to be needing help. He will come bearing any gift you like to grant any wish you like, but be sure you mean to keep it. He could leave you far out of the way of what you really want, if you don't know what you really want. He loves his work, and he is always busy. He does not have time for cell phones, computers, or sleep, only his work which takes him all around the world at all hours of day and night. He can communicate in many languages without physical technology, using only his advanced spiritual technology. He may even be able to fly around and hover around. He may lay hands on to heal, even distant healing is not beyond him. He may not be forced to do anything, or there are grave consequences of the angelic host and all people connected to you. They will all start to oppose you as soon as you find them. They may even start to confess their sins. But this man, a mystery as he is, can catch fish. He can teach you things and how to fish. Better to feed a man a fish and never teach him anything is a fool's folly. Teach him how to fish so he knows how to eat every day of his life. Remember, throw back what you don't want to eat. "There are other fish in the sea, I remember him saying to me once" the double agent once said.
